

Charles Treadway

February 9, 2008

Charles Joseph Treadway Jr. died Saturday, Feb. 9, at the age of 55 from a courageous battle with cancer in Corvallis.

He was born in San Jose, Calif., to Charles Joseph Treadway Sr. and Gwyla Velma Spicer Treadway. He was the second of four children.

He grew up in Sunnyvale and Cupertino, Calif.

After graduation, he joined the Marines and fulfilled his duty in honor of our country.

He married Gloria Schmid and had two boys, Vincent Charles and Clinton Charles. They moved to Nevada and later divorced.

He then married Cindy Pavloff and they had a daughter, Stevie-Lynn Nicole. They moved to Oregon. This also ended in divorce.

Chuck moved to California and devoted his life as a single dad while working at a body shop in Auburn.

After Stevie-Lynn graduated from high school, he got his wish to move back to Oregon. He especially liked the Oregon coast. He enjoyed watching the NHRA drag races and spending time with his family.

He was a dearly loved son, brother, father, uncle and friend.

He is survived by his daughter, Stevie-Lynn Nicole Treadway; sons Vincent Charles Treadway and Clinton Charles Treadway; sisters Pamela Darcy and Lynda Treadway; his step-father Turner Whitfield and his wife, Judy; niece Sabra Sailor and nephew Cade Darcy along with his children Madison (great-niece) and Isaiah (great-nephew).

He was preceded in death by his father, mother and brother Jonathan Randall Treadway.

He will always be remembered for his quick wit and great sense of humor, as well as his willingness to help people in any way that he could.

All will cherish and remember Chuck's presence in their lives. He will be missed greatly by those whose lives he touched.

A celebration of his life will be at Calvary Chapel of Corvallis on Saturday, Feb. 23, at 2 p.m.
