

Margaret J. Orsi

February 3, 1928 - July 28, 2019

With great sadness we note the passing of Margaret Josephine Orsi on Sunday July 28, 2019.

Margaret, aged 91 was mother, grandmother and friend to many. Although, 91 her passing is still too soon, still sad. It is hard to imagine life without her. What does help is remembering how she lived.

She was born a Corvallis Girl! Attending grade, middle and high school here she developed lifelong dear friends. Corvallis would be the hub for a very active and adventure filled life. Raised by wonderful parents, Hulda and Harlow Atwood, Margaret came of age during WWII and her reaction to this tragedy was emboldened and adventurous. Life and the world were things to be seized, explored and experienced! And she did. Like her mother before her she joined Delta Gamma sorority, attended and graduated from Willamette University, Class of 1950 with a degree in psychology. Her first job with Crown Zellerback took her to San Francisco but she grew restless. She joined the State Department's Foreign Service and after a crash course in Italian in Washington DC, was stationed in Bari and Florence. She was assigned a driver, and a maid who would lay out her clothes, dress her and cook. Oh My! In true Margaret fashion she would frequently miss the driver because she was late! An American girl in Italy in the 1950's! Margaret took advantage of time aboard making several side trips including one to England to catch Queen Elizabeth's coronation. Most importantly though Margaret went on a chance blind date and met our father Vincenzo Orsi, an engineering student. Margaret was embraced by the Orsi family and after a courtship of 5 years she and Vincenzo were married in the Pitti Palace in Florence. They wanted to have children and thought America would give them the best chance, so, they hopped on a steamer and landed in New York, driving cross country to Corvallis.

Margaret and Vincenzo would have 4 children living in Hillsboro, Albany and Corvallis. Margaret was a stay at home mom while Vincenzo worked. The family was loving, vibrant and happy. Tragically Vincenzo died in 1972 and Margaret, now a widower with 4 kids aged 10-13 had to make big adjustments. In 1969 she found work at Linn Benton Community College, an upstart at that time. She would work there 21 years retiring in 1991 serving in several capacities from library clerk to secretary to the president and became known as Mother Margaret. Often a pioneer she started the College's recycling program. Her adventurous spirit expressed itself as she became devoted to several causes from Volkswalks to protest movements. She was part of women's changing roles and was complicated because she still needed help turning a screw driver.

Margaret never "settled" into retirement. She loved her Otter Rock Beach cabin. She was active in several book, support and women's groups, and her community causes. She traveled extensively riding elephants in India, walking the Great Wall of China at 62, parasailing in Mexico, getting her first tattoo at 75, riding a hot air balloon ride at 80. In all, she explored over a dozen countries. She started when ship travel was common and the airplanes had propellers. Her last plane ride was in 2016 for her granddaughters college graduation. She made the impossible seem possible. She wanted her family gathered for every holiday and she loved parties. We even celebrated her 91st birthday with hats and streamers!

In the early 2000 Margaret found love again. She was reunited with a man she had met 50 years before in San Francisco. Back then he proposed but she said no and set off for Italy. In 2001 on a lark she wrote him a letter and they reconnected and had several good years together until his passing. At his service his daughter with evident gratitude, publicly thanked Margaret for "giving my dad the 10 best years of his life". Of this, I have no doubt. She had a way.

Margaret had fun and enjoyed life. She loved her family and friends. She befriended all kinds of people with varying creeds, ages and persuasions. She always had a curious nature and interest in people, their stories and the world. She was friends with her kids friends, often being a surrogate mother/mentor. She always wanted to be updated about their lives and corresponded directly with several. Margaret's humor, enthusiasm, thirst for knowledge, curiosity, charm and grace touched many and made her an important part of people's lives.

Her relationships were special and meaningful whether friendships since childhood or caregivers who helped her the last six months. These many relationships were the result of growing because mom befriended so many over the years. She was one of a kind and will be missed.

“ I am so sorry to miss the memorial today. I was Margaret's house cleaner, and working for her was always a highlight of my week. She was my favorite client, hands down. She was incredibly thoughtful, always asking how I'd been or inquiring about my partner's progress in grad school. In spite of her age, she was sharp as a tack and remarkably modern. She took good care of herself and was in great shape, but one of the things I liked most was the incredible density of cookie crumbs I vacuumed from around her chair every two weeks. It made me happy to imagine this petite, elegant woman sitting in her recliner eating huge quantities of cookies. She was a warm and lovely human being, and I will never forget her. She is an inspiration to me of how to age well, surrounded by friends and family, and plenty of sweets.

“ Margaret made everything and everyone more fun and relaxed. I remember going camping with her and her kids and my Mom and me. She was like having another kid around to hang out with. I know my Mom always spoke highly of her and enjoyed her friendship since junior high.

“ In 1969 when I joined the LBCC staff as an administrator Margaret became my first secretary and truly ran my office and helped me become a better team member, Many years later she applied for the position of secretary to the college president, When Ray Needham, the president at the time, asked me if she was up to the job I reluctantly said that she would truly do a good job and more importantly everyone on the campus would love his office. She was one of the most positive, gracious, and fun people to be around and I missed her being in my office. I truly regret that I did not stay in contact over the years.. Bob Miller

“ Thank you for sharing your memories Bob. It's so nice to read that others appreciated Margaret's wonderful spirit just as much as we did. I know she had some great times at LBCC and formed some wonderful friendships.

“ I'm very sorry to learn of Margaret's passing. We met in 2013 at a grievance support workshop and continued to meet periodically for the next few years. She was a smart & lovely woman whose friendship helped me cope with losing my husband much too early.
