“ I met Alan at Brandeis University when I was a freshman and knew him only slightly. He stood out as a handsome popular guy who was the subject of a lot of jokes—including his own—because he was taller than most of his classmates and a Jew from Texas. May God have mercy on his soul, and may he rest in peace.

“ I knew Alan only a short while but he was the kind of person you would have wanted to know for a lifetime. He was brilliant, witty, and a self-proclaimed 'old hippie'. His smile and his stories never failed to light up a room and his writing was first class. Our world is just a bit more dreary without Alan.
