“ I know this is way late. Mels and I were in MO together . She was my battle buddy. She always knew how to make my day and was always straightforward with me. She showed me how to stick to my guns . She is a great mom. My prayers go out to her family. Mels u will be missed greatly. I just wish I talked to u more often than I did.

“ You know Melanie and I didn't start out so great on the right foot. We had our differences but you know we both learned to get past them and decided to try and start over and I know it was late but its a lot better then not at all. I know now that I look back and think of the time we spent together not liking each other or getting along and I realized that she was an amazing woman she did so much for Matt and all the kids, I guess I kind of in a way envied her for being in the military, being a wife, and well having a family. She still managed to get a job and support her family, and I guess I really admired her for everything she did in her time here on earth. And to be quite honest I think she didn't deserve to leave yet, having a loving husband and a beautiful family. I don't think she fulfilled her quest that God had planned for her. But I may have been wrong God thought she did. But I strongly disagree with him he takes the good ones away. I still to this day don't think that it was her time. I think she still had a whole lifetime to make beautiful memories and grow old. In a way I miss her, I have no right to after all that happened between us. but if she was generous and kind hearted enough to forgive me and try and make a friendship then I owe her that much. I am very sorry to all of the people that lost an amazing woman in there lives, she will be loved and missed. Always and Forever.
