“ Hey baby, I love you, I always will. I will always cherish the memories, the good times, building our dream home together when the children were small, standing in line for hours on end with your family's help to get a loan so we could build our house. Thank you babe, for our children when I really didn't know I would have any. Thank you for loving me and tolerating a lot of my fears of driving in our younger days. Thank you for sharing your life with me. I wish I could have cherished you more and told you how good-looking you were more often. Many things I could say but time will not permit . God has chosen to take you away and I know that someday I will go away as well. I hope we meet again someday and we will be made perfect like Christ. By for now, With all my love now and forever,
Kathy
