“ I did not know her very well considering I've only spoken to her via telephone about two decades ago. (I'm 28) But I felt a deep spiritual impact when I learned of her death, and sadness because I'll never get the chance to meet her, and I know so little about my family. I believe that everyone on Earth spends their time trying to learn their true identity, (God has this planned out for a reason) and I believe that connecting with your family, (whether it be genetic or spiritual) is a sure way to lead one to discovering one's true identity. I did not know her, and my mom speaks little of her family, but I know in my heart that she was a great woman, and cannot help but to give thanks to her for giving birth to my mom so that I could be born. My mom is Julia Elizabeth Braun. I could never write the words to accurately express my feelings

“ I met Sheila 35 years ago when my husband and I were having marital problems. She saved my marriage and a few years later I brought my teenage daughter to see her I truly believe she saved my daughter's life. Several years later she helped me save my grandson. I don't know what my life would have been like without her. I gave her number to many people and she helped them and/or their children. Words cannot express the gratitude and love I have for her. I feel blessed that God brought her into my life.

Hi Michelle, I am Sheila's Grandson from her first born daughter, Julia Elizabeth nee Braun, and I've never had the opportunity to meet her, although I did get a chance to talk on the telephone when I was about ten years old. (No more than 5-10 times)

Memory is an almost unfathomable realm of its own, as I somehow remember the sound of her voice and the deep wisdom she projected. anyway...

I know little to nothing about my family, and I saw this comment and was elated at the thought of possible future connections into my family tree.
