“ Grandpa Jimbo,
I miss you. He always greeted me with a remark about how pretty I looked, or how he had the best looking grandchildren. His personality was one of a kind. It does not matter what he was talking about because it always made me laugh or interested me. I just still can't believe you're gone.

“ Jim, as we called him, always returned a smile with a smile; a beaming smile. Our exchange almost every morning went something like this:

"Good morning, Jim."

His response, "What's so good about it?"

"Well, you get to see me!"

This always drew a smile.

He always claimed to be "old and crotchety" but I knew it was just an act. He always had plenty of spirit.

I'm gonna miss you, Jim. See ya later alligator.

My thoughts and prayers are with you all at this time of grieving.
Thank you for providing the opportunity to know him.

With love,
